What: TAGteach is a learning tool with its roots in Applied Behavior Analysis. Clarity and simplicity are key aspects of TAGteach. This workshop is hands on and will have you teaching AND learning various skills from the start using TAGteach methodology. This tool has been applied to a vast range of learning environments including professional golf, physical and occupational therapy, horseback riding, gymnastics, special education, pilates and parenting, just to name a few. You will learn how to apply TAGteach for better classroom management, teaching one on one skills and building teamwork. TAGteach helps students learn how to self assess and puts them in the role of being a teacher, right from the start. TAGteach is also an incredibly FUN way to learn and teach!

You will learn how to:

Optimize instructions

Provide instant feedback

Provide instant, meaningful reinforcement

Fast-track success for you and your learners

Horse details: While at the ranch, we will spend some time with the horses and practice teaching basic horsemanship skills using TAGteach. We will not be riding, but it is required to wear long pants and closed toed shoes or boots. This is a working youth ranch and there will be various activities going on around us.

Instructor: Keri Gorman is a Senior TAGteach Instructor and has been conducting seminars for 10 years. Prior to that she was an animal trainer at Sea World and Director of Education at the Humane Society for Southwest Washington. Her background in animal training and youth programs has given her a huge range of experience in teaching human and non-human learners. She has successfully used TAGteach in the classroom environment, with at-risk youth, horseback riding, rock climbing, guide dog instruction and most recently, as a parent to her two young children.
